Well I didn't get much info but he said that didn't surprise him. And that would be one of a few rooms like that.

Your friend said it didn't surprise him and that there are others and you left it at that? That's nearly as odd as that room, that you didn't ask "why" to either of his responses.

Well out of the blue I text him about the room on top of him not working there for 2 years. Sorry next time ill take him to dinner and bring a note pad.

No, I'm still gonna say it's weird that you didn't ask for more info.

He was director of the audio visual dept so his I cant blame him for not knowing about every room. Ill take him drinking this weekend and maybe we can call some of his co-workers who know more.

I wouldn't blame your friend in the slightest. I thought it was weird you didn't ask why he wasn't surprised. Surprise at this odd room is rampant in this thread, or at least curiosity is. Texting/time constraints goes a ways toward explaining it though. But my unresolved curiosity kinda hates you right now.

He's part of it! The Audio visual dept? He was filming whatever weird crap they got up to!

They always get to them. Hell... They shot the president and got away with it.

You da man. I still have unresolved curiosity but that's not your fault. Thanks for the delivery.

I feel like this is possibly bullshit as you might expect them to rent out the jail cell room more publicly.

[\[-\]no\_egrets](#) 8 points 2 days ago

It's clearly bullshit. Looks nothing like a jail. Clean plastered and painted walls, various paintings, shaded lamps, curtains, a large mirror?

then why would it not be rented out? he makes it sound like it's a perk of that brand, right? so why would they keep it secret and not rent it?

Because he may only be privy to certain compartmentalized information

This whole thread seems like a PR stunt.

If it's just 'the jail cell room' then how come it can't be rented like all the other themed rooms?

Sounds like something they would say to the employees.

I smell bullshit. There a portait of a creepy old CEO that just happens to be in a secret society. There's a false wall and 2 way mirror and strange art... what kind of theme are they trying to go for??? definitely not jail haha he was probably told never to talk about that room

From a viral marketing aspect, I can see the two way mirror as a part of the concept (not a real one, just the marketed idea of one) because you have no privacy (just like in jail). However, the creepy guy photo throws me. This shit is just weird.

Doesn't explain why it's not meant to be rented out. Or the weird guy's pic.

BS. Why would it have a picture of that guy???

Now ask about the one-way mirror.

I can just see the guy that started the ZaZa saying, "I'm going to start my own hotel! With blackjack rooms AND hooker rooms!"

Then he fucking did. Now we just need to see the blackjack room.

If that's the hooker room, I bet you can 'request' the camera behind the mirror be turned on. Then, during checkout, you can pick up a nice little DVD if your previous night's fun.

Why would you post this as an independent comment instead of as an edit to your original post? How would you expect anyone to know the context of this otherwise?
